NUTRITION TIP OF THE WEEK—FROM THE KSC FITNESS CENTERS: Folic acid is a water-soluble B vitamin that plays an important role in cell division and growth, especially during pregnancy, by preventing damage to cellular DNA. You can find folic acid in many types of foods, including green leafy vegetables, orange juice, cereals, and breads. Because folic acid is not a very stable vitamin, much of it is lost during meal preparation. To avoid losing folic acid in your food, don't overcook your food. Instead, opt for quick cooking methods such as steaming your vegetables in a small amount of water. You can also get the most out of fruits and vegetables by eating them raw. (JJ-C)
